

I think that it is a good idea to have weather and traffic info on xm radio. Most of the time you can't even find a local radio station with the weather and traffic. I don't think that it should be any worry to standard radio stations. They can't even compare to the quality of xm satellite radio nevermind even finding a station that has the weather or traffic on. If they are so worried about it they should make themselves better rather than complaining about a great service that xm provides. Honestly I don't even think that this should be an issue to worry about.
